

Supporting creative writers,
grade school to adults,
Nebraska to all nations,
beginners to seasoned
authors and poets

The year 2020 is Fine Lines' 29th consecutive year of providing a place where creative writers can share their written ideas with others.

Our journal is dedicated to the writing development of all yearly members.

What started out as a classroom project is now a fifty-state network of authors who love the written word and have the support of a 501 (c) 3 non-profit organization.

Every Fine Lines quarterly issue is 200-300 plus pages of fiction, nonfiction, and poetry written by students, teachers, and community members of all ages and abilities.

Diversity in the World

Who submits to Fine Lines?

We receive prose articles of medium length, reflective essays on widely diverse topics, including authors' life experiences, what individuals learn through the writing process, and poetry of all forms from writers in all 50 states of the USA and 42 other nations.

Authors of all ages and occupations are encouraged to submit to Fine Lines. We have printed poetry by third graders, students of all levels, writing by a ninety-four year old great, great grandmother, an Indian chief, truck drivers, janitors, doctors, lawyers, ministers, truck drivers, nurses, scientists, and PhDs.

We want to print your work. Send it in, now. Write on.

Now, it is your turn!

If you want to read the interesting and controversial ideas of others, Fine Lines is for you.

Send us a submission of your own writing soon, and you could also become a published author.

“Write On” Summer Camps

The yearly Fine Lines creative writing camp is open to students and adults of all ages and writing interests.

Our focus is to help campers learn to write more, write faster, and write better.

More than anything, though, the camps create time to dream about ideas and celebrate the power and beauty of
